A horizontal sequence of 20 black squares followed by a vertical bar and a question mark.

A black and white halftone graphic of a computer keyboard. The keys are represented by small squares, creating a dotted pattern. The layout includes a standard QWERTY keyboard, a numeric keypad on the right, and various function keys like F1-F12. A question mark key is located in the top row, and a green key is visible on the far right edge.

The image consists of a grid of black squares on a white background. It features several horizontal bands of varying widths. Each band contains a series of vertical columns of squares. The pattern is irregular, with some columns being taller than others. The spacing between the columns varies, creating a sense of depth or a stylized digital landscape. There are no discernible characters, symbols, or other graphical elements.
